Huaniu apple market continues its uptrend

Detail Introduction:

After several tumbles, the Huaniu Apple has started on an upward trend. Since December last year, to of Huaniu apples has been on the rise. The storage price of Huaniu apples above 75# is about 3 RMB the current selling price is 9-11 RMB/kg, and the price has tripled. At present, the sales of Huaniu have entered the final stage. In addition to the long-term and stable supply of fruit dealers, there is a certal amount of inventory, and most of the fruit has been sold, which can be said to be a perfect closing. The Fuji apples, which have attracted much attention from the capital market, entered a stable period after experiencing a slight rise during the Spring Festival.

At present, the sales of apples in Yunnan, Guizhou and Sichuan have basically ended, and the sales in Shanxi and Henan have entered the final stage. Shaanxi and Shandong are the main sales force. Affe the spread of the pandemic across the country, logistics and shipment have been affected, market subsen limited to a certain extent, and prices have been stable but weak. Judging from the total amount remaining inventory and the speed of delivery, under the condition that the pandemic situation is un control and the climate is normal, the risk of later sales is not big, and fruit farmers and fruit merchana certain profit margin.

Although some production areas have speculated on prices during the Qingming Festival stocking pe the prices have risen slightly, the apples have not really been distributed to the consumer market. At the apple's terminal sales are mainly based on stimulating consumption, and the willingness to activ consume is weak, and it is difficult for the price to rise, making it difficult for consumers. It is expected possibility of a sharp rise in the later period is small, the price of medium and low-grade fruits may fatthe decline of quality in the later period, and the middle and high-end fruits will rise steadily. Therefore difficult for Fuji apples to replicate the trend of Huaniu apples.