New Zealand officially opens production season of new apple variety, Sassy

Detail Introduction:

The apple season in New Zealand begins every year in the middle of February and continues until Au September. New Zealand apples are fragrant, sweet, and juicy. Their appearance and flavor are wone and they are very popular in the market. Moreover, compared to other fruits, apples survive storage transport quite well. When the apples arrive in the Chinese market, they are still very fresh.

"Most New Zealand apples in the Chinese markets are Gala apples. Queen apples generally arrive in first New Zealand apples of the season were scheduled to arrive in China on the 23rd of February but been delayed by more than two weeks and only arrived in early March. Fortunately, apples survive st and transport very well, so the product quality was not affected much." This is according to Sharon H CEO of Faikee Fruit Limited.

"The weather conditions were excellent this season, so the product quality of the apples that arrived is quite good, even better than last season. As for the price, the average cost price of production and distribution went up, which increased the cost price of apples. However, when the apples arrived, see outbreaks of Covid-19 created obstacles to product movement, and that caused the price of apples to The retail price of the first Taylor apples of the season was around 350-360 yuan [53.83-55.37 USD] price of Taylor apples were around 310-320 yuan [47.68-49.22 USD] per box. The price of Tapples is quite good and resistant to negative fluctuations. Many other apple brands have already dretheir prices to around 200 yuan [30.76 USD] per box. The Chinese market normally experiences a performance of Sales around Tomb-Sweeping Day [5 April], but this year product movement was less than ideal." Sharon explained new developments for New Zealand apple varieties: "New Zealand introduced a new variety, the Sassy apple. This early-season variety is already available on the Chinese market. The Sassis a hybrid of Jazz, Fuji, and Pacific Rose apples. The outside is a bright and glossy red. The flavor is fra and sweet, and the apple is crisp. Moreover, the fruit peel is full of natural anthocyanidins.

"The supply volume is still rather small, and the price is around 320-330 [49.22-50.76 USD] per box. We always said that production areas need to improve and introduce new apple varieties continuously. Taylor brand as an example; they introduced their new Taylor "King" apple variety. The apple is sweet firm. Every single bite is full of sweet flavor. Moreover, the Taylor King apple looks nicer than the Galatthat enter the market around the same time. King Apple received great consumer feedback when the

entered the market last yea	ar, and product moveme	ent was smooth. This y	ear the King apples arrived
