

Prices for imported onions have increased in Ukraine

Detail Introduction :

At this point, the main supply in the Ukrainian onions market is from imports, particularly from Poland. At the start of the week, selling prices for imported onions started growing rapidly. Project analysts explain this increase due to the reduction in onion stocks in Poland and a significant increase in prices for logistics services.

According to the project's daily monitoring, prices from Poland in the Ukrainian market today are around 18 UAH/kg ($0.48-0.62/kg). Thus, they have become more expensive by an average of 30% over the week. Meanwhile, the demand for onions in Ukraine remains quite high, and the supply is rapidly decreasing. According to key market players, last year's onion stocks in Ukraine are practically exhausted, and only a few new crops from local farms are not supplied to the market. As we have repeatedly reported, the Kherson region, one of the leaders in growing early vegetables in Ukraine, is currently under occupation.
